Farewell & Adieu

by Izak Westgate

The Final Rush of Maurice Richard

Written for the Richard family by a poet & schoolteacher in Trois-Rivieres, Quebec, Bernard Pozier

For one last time, with fire in your eyes
 you take the puck at centre ice
 driving hard with your legs
 you skate straight ahead
 as swiftly as you can
 but as you cross the enemy's blueline
 suddenly you no longer see the goalie
 the net disappears
 the boards open wide,
 a welcome gate to freedom
 and you escape the arena
 to the rivers of your youth
 and for hours, until the crowd is gone
 only night and silence remain
 the puck on your palette
 you skate forever without end
 on the endless ice of our memory
 until we all fade away
 and you breathe the pure air
 the absolute joy of skating alone
 eyes in the heavens
 without rumour, or goal
 free of all that hinders you.

May 27, 2000 Arenas across the province of Quebec, coast to coast in Canada and throughout the entire continent fell eerily silent. One of the most intense, compelling and influential hockey players the National Hockey League has ever seen passed away at the age of 78.

For 18 seasons, Maurice "Rocket" Richard endeared himself to the fans of the Montreal Canadiens with his win-at-all-costs attitude and flair for the dramatic. Meanwhile around the league there was a genuine dislike for the smallish right winger, yet, at the same time a deep-found respect and admiration for his immense talent and skill that made him one of the greatest pure goal scorers in the history of the game.

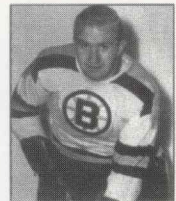

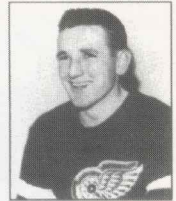

The Rocket was the first to score 50 goals in a single NHL season and to record 500 goals over the course of his career. Both accomplishments remain to this day as the standard pure goal scorers are measured by over the course of their career. During his 18 seasons, the Canadiens won 8 Stanley Cup championships, including a record five consecutive from 1956-1960. Following his retirement in 1960, he was the NHL's career leader in both goals (544) and points (965).

Off the ice Richard was very different; quiet, shy and the consummate family man, he would rather avoid the limelight than bask in it. There were occasions however, when the Montreal Forum faithful were again able to show their appreciation for his years of dedication. Perhaps the most memorable tribute took place during the Forum's final game on March 11, 1996. That night, during a parade of Hall of Famers, the ultimate ovation lasting more than 10 minutes in length was reserved for him.

The final opportunity came on Tuesday, May 30, 2000. In a memorial usually held for politicians and royalty, the "Rocket" was placed in a familiar spot (the goal crease) at the Molson Centre, so all could pay one last respect to their hero. In a scene from a movie, thousands filed by that day, the wake lasting well into the late evening hours.

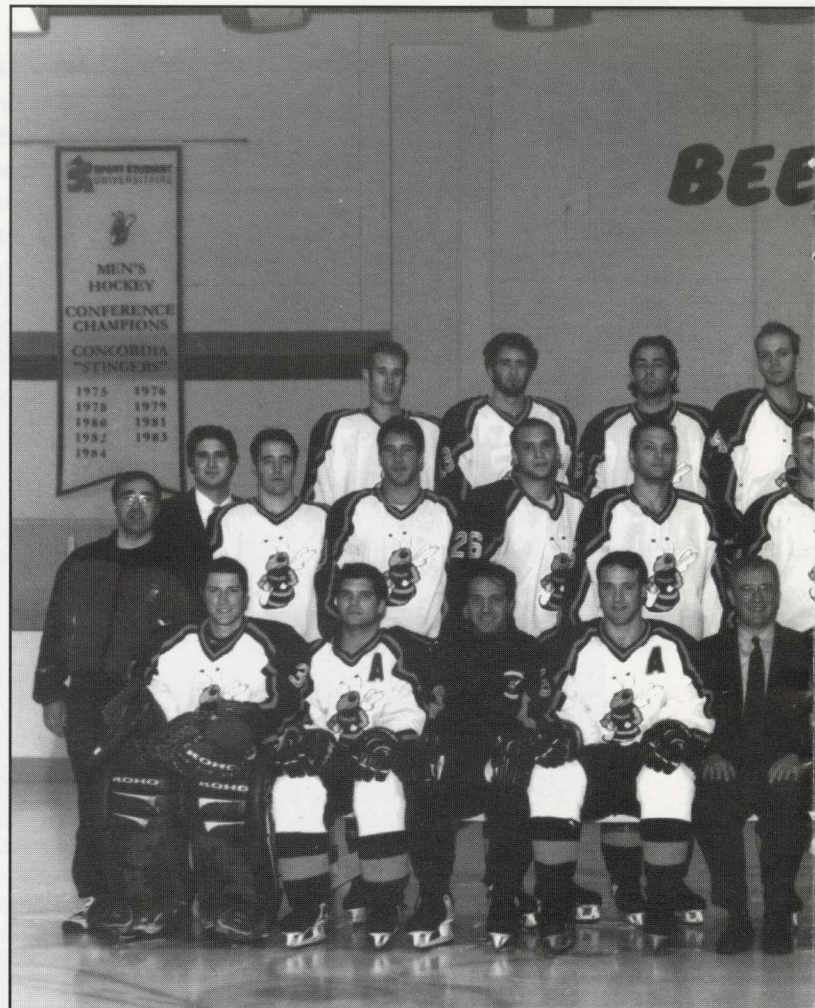

Richard transcended the game in a way no other has or will, especially to the people of Quebec. The tribute he received that spring day was not only in honour of his talents as a hockey player, but his ability to influence the everyday life of the people that watched him perform.

Rocket... you will be missed by all!

The Hockey Hall of Fame would like to pay tribute to all the Honoured Members that passed away over the past year. Sid Abel (1918-2000), Robert LeBel (1906-1999) and Bill Quackenbush (1922-1999). All left a lasting and memorable contribution to the game we all love and will be sadly missed, but not forgotten.

LOYOLA WARRIORS

the montreal shamrocks

Hockey players at Loyola, 1920. P049/P19

On March 14, 1899 three Loyola pioneers starred with the Montreal Shamrocks as the team won the Stanley Cup.

In 1893-4 Harry Trihey (Captain), Arthur Farrell and Jack Brannen were a force on the hockey team at Collège Ste-Marie, out of which came Loyola College, one of the founding institutions of Concordia University.

The Shamrocks hockey team grew out of the Shamrocks Lacrosse team, world champions at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893. It was an era of religious prejudice and Catholics did not play on the WASP-dominated teams of the Amateur Hockey Association (AHA). The Shamrocks hockey team was started with support from pastor John Quinlivan of St. Patrick's Church (now basilica). The Shamrocks joined the AHA in 1895 and the newly-formed Canadian Amateur Hockey League in 1898.

The Shamrocks won the Stanley Cup on March 1, 1899 by defeating the Montreal Victorias 1-0 before 8,000 people in the new Montreal arena at the corner of Wood and St.-Catherine Streets. On March 14 they defended the cup 6-2 in a challenge from Queen's University. In a February 4 lead-up game the Shamrocks beat Quebec City 13-4, with team captain Trihey scoring 10 goals--a truly amazing record for Stanley Cup play.

The Shamrocks won the Cup again in 1900 when they defeated the Winnipeg Victorias on February 16, and successfully defended the title against Halifax on March 7, 1900.

In 1899 goal nets were used for the first time, and later that year the rules of hockey were modified by Farrell and Trihey. Players could no longer lift the puck and there was greater emphasis on stick-handling.

As hockey moved into the 20th century, the coveted Stanley Cup occupied a prominent place in the Montreal Shamrocks' clubhouse.

Jack Brannen, known as the fastest skater of his day, went on to fight in World War I and became a physician. Team captain Harry Trihey was the principal organizer of the 55th regiment of the Irish Rangers, and later became a prominent Montreal lawyer and businessman. Arthur Farrell died a young man. Besides the power line of forwards Trihey, Brannen and Farrell, the team included Charles Hoerner, Jim McKenna, Fred Scanlan, Frank Tansey, Frank Wall. Barney Dunphy was coach.
